The Arnold Community Council represents 13 Tennessee & Alabama counties. It was founded in 2000 to support the USAF Arnold Engineering Development Center (AEDC) at Arnold AFB, Tenn. The council currently has more than 400 individual, civic, business and local government memberships.

Where would we be without AEDC?

If you own a business or work for a business in this area, stop and think about the patronage from AEDC employees – (banks, grocery stores, medical offices, car dealerships, etc.). The people of AEDC are vital for area growth and development.

What is the ACC?

The Arnold Community Council was formed to support and promote and support the Air Force's Arnold Engineering Development Center at Arnold Air Force Base, Tenn. The group's Board of Directors meets every month with the AEDC commander; the meetings are open to all members.

The Council provides a special phone line 24/7 for deployed personnel so they can call home at no charge.

The Council gives savings bonds to military quarterly award winners and annual award winners, and collects many other gifts from the community to honor these individuals for their service to our country. The Council also gives the winners free tickets to ACC's annual membership banquet, a special event featuring a prominent guest speaker, great food and hundreds of community leaders who support AEDC.

Council members attend and provide donations for a number of base events, including the annual Veterans Picnic, annual Children's Christmas Party, receptions and VIP events for civic leaders from other bases as well as other VIP groups/leaders visiting AEDC.

The Legislative Awareness Communications Team spearheads two other annual events – a breakfast in Nashville for members of the Tennessee General Assembly and a Country Ham Breakfast in Washington, D.C. for members of the Tennessee delegation. The breakfasts give the Council an opportunity to keep lawmakers, both state and federal, updated on the latest needs and issues at AEDC.

Members are encouraged to get involved in as many of Council activities as you want... We need your support!
